

Stacy P. Chronopoulos is an intellectual property attorney with the Wm. Wrigley Jr. Company representing the company's diverse domestic and international trademark portfolio. Her primary areas of concentration are trademark, copyright, unfair competition, licensing, maintenance, protection and enforcement of intangible rights. Mrs. Chronopoulos was formerly a partner of the law firm of Pedersen & Houghton in Chicago, where she led the firm's intellectual property and technology practice group.

Mrs. Chronopoulos is an adjunct professor at DePaul University College of Law, teaching a course in advanced domestic and international trademark prosecution. She is also an adjunct professor at the John Marshall Law School teaching a course in foreign and domestic trademark and copyright law for paralegals and legal assistants.

Mrs. Chronopoulos chaired the Patent, Trademark and Copyright Committee of the Chicago Bar Association. She is an active member of the Intellectual Property Law Association of Chicago where she served on the Board of Managers and was a past chair of the Dinner Committee. She is also a member of the Chicago Intellectual Property Alliance, the International Trademark Association and the Illinois Bar Association.

Mrs. Chronopoulos received her B.A. from Miami University in Oxford, Ohio and her J.D. from DePaul University College of Law.

She has authored several articles in the areas of trademark and copyright law, and is a frequent speaker on trademark related issues.